Inspired by Thursday Dinners

The inspiration for the creation of Thursday Conversations was Thursday Dinners, organized on the model of Parisian literary salons.

During the Thursday Dinners, art, literature, philosophy, culture, and the most important contemporary social issues were discussed.

King Stanisław August Poniatowski, during his stay in Paris in 1753, participated in Parisian literary salons, getting to know the intellectual elite of Europe, as well as the art of discussion and rhetoric.

Thursday Dinners were undoubtedly of great importance for building a modern, educated and conscious society.

Thursday Conversations is a space for discussing
passions, culture,
history, art, important social and humanitarian matters.

Thursday Conversations were held in the summer in Łazienki Royal Park. The purpose of the meetings was to talk about art and science, and to discuss literary works. Artists, i.e. painters, sculptors, poets, and writers were among the invited guests at Thursday Conversations.

The marriage of history and the present day.

Thursday's Conversations by Angelika Jarosławska Sapieha
are a new series of inspiring conversations that will show a new, unknown face of often known interlocutors.

An excerpt from an interview with Kamil Lemieszewski.

My dream, as the author of the program, is that each conversation should be an inspiration for the viewers, and each interlocutor has the feeling that he has shared what is valuable with others.
